THE CITY COUNCIL.

It Fixes the Tax Rate at $1.45, and Passes Contract for Electric Light.

The City Council at its regular meeting Tuesday night transacted some business of great importance to the taxpayers.

The ordinance fixing the tax rate for the year, and which passed its first reading at a called meeting on Monday afternoon, was finally passed by the unanimous vote of the board, at $1.45 on each $100 valuation. It is divided as follows:

For Sinking Fund 50 cents.
For School Fund 20 cents.
For General Fund 75 cents.

Besides this, a poll tax of $1.50 on each male over twenty-one years was imposed by the ordinance. This tax on $3,400,000 property valuation in the city will yield each of the funds, less the cost of collection and non-collectable bills, the following amount, viz:

Sinking Fund $17,000
School Fund 6,800
General Fund 25,500

Total $49,300

A petition was presented from the Frankfort Insurance Board, asking that the water company be allowed to put a second line of pipe across the bridge, to prevent the cutting off of the supply of water to the north side of the city, in case an accident happens to the present line of pipe, as it did on Sunday. Councilman Miles objected and said that the water company were using the insurance board to further their designs, and that he thought it came in bad grace from the insurance companies to ask it, just after they had raised the insurance rates here, when they had promised, upon the completion of the new water works, to lower them. The petition was finally referred to the bridge committee.

The ordinance prohibiting the street cars from going faster than four miles an hour over the bridge, was given its final passage.

The ordinance was finally passed to ratify the contract with the Gas and Electric Light Co., to light the whole city with arc lights.

In discussing the nuisance of hitching horses on the streets, it was discovered that an ordinance not only prohibited it, but also required livery stables to keep all their customers' vehicles and their own off the streets except on public days. The City Marshal was requested to enforce the ordinance.

Prof. Robbins in Georgia.

While visiting Atlanta, Ga., last week, Mr. Geo. Robbins attended the meetings at which the manufacturers of Georgia effected an organization the object of which is to promote the manufacturing industries of the State. As a result of the effort of Mr. Robbins, the association provided in its constitution for a committee on industrial and technical education, the duty of which shall be to investigate and report the relationship of the Industrial, Manual Training and Polytechnic Schools to the manufacturing industries of the State and nation.

He also wrote a resolution, which was passed, pledging the Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U.S. Gov't Report

"encouragement and support by the association of all rational efforts made in the line of industrial instruction, in every feasible manner."

He also secured the admission of teachers of Industrial, Manual Training and Technical schools, to the association as advisory members of the committee on Industrial and Technical Education.

This is the first association organized in the South, and will serve as a model for other States, therefore, the recognition of industrial education and educators in that line may result in a more intimate relationship between the public school and the people, and a higher appreciation of the effort of the school in the line of industrial education.

THE FISCAL COURT.

Sheriff's Settlements and Tax Rate Postponed and County Treasurer Abolished.

The Fiscal Court of the county, composed of the County Judge and five magistrates, held a meeting Monday to pass upon Sheriff R. D. Armstrong's accounts and to fix a tax rate for county purposes for this year. The first matter, in so far as a settlement with the State was concerned, was approved but the settlement for the county revenue was postponed until next Monday as was also the question of a tax rate. Last year the rate was 40 cents for county purposes and 16 2/3 cents for railroads and it is probable the same rate will be fixed. The action of the court in abolishing the office of County Treasurer was in the nature of a surprise to the people as well as the candidates. The place paid $400 per annum and has been held by Mr. Ben Marshall for more than two years past. Besides Mr. Marshall, who sought a re-election, the contestants for the office were Messrs. Gus Thomas, John Harrod and George Hennen. After questioning the Sheriff as to the amount of the county's funds in his hands, and learning that since he has held the office of Sheriff, the county has always been in his debt, and therefore did not need the services of a Treasurer, it was proposed and adopted by the court that the office of Treasurer be abolished. This will require the Sheriff to perform the duties of that office.

New Clerk in the Post Office.

Mr. J. M. Williams has been appointed to the vacant clerkship in the Post Office, his average being the highest at the recent civil service examination. Mr. Williams already held the position of second substitute mail carrier in the office.

AN OLD FIRM DISSOLVES.

The Louisville and Frankfort Houses of Messrs. Crutcher & Starks to be Dissolved.

The firm of Crutcher & Starks, the enterprising business men who have conducted the largest clothing and gents' furnishing house in the city for the past 15 years, will be dissolved on the 8th of July—Messrs. John P. and Ike Starks withdrawing their interest from the house in this city and Mr. D. C. Crutcher withdrawing his interest from the Louisville house—and in order to reduce the stock before that time they announce a great dissolution sale on the eighth page of this paper. If Mr. D. C. Crutcher can dispose of the store in this city by June 1st he will remove to Boise City, Idaho, where he and his two brothers are interested in a large enterprise, but if he fails to sell by that time he will settle down here, purchase a home and make this his permanent residence, continuing business at the old stand. But whether he sells or not, he will be here until the first of September, as he cannot possibly leave before then, and will be glad to have his friends call and get some of the great bargains he is offering in the meantime.

A Waterfall.

A joint of the water main at the south end of the St. Clair street bridge, broke Saturday night, and a volume of water, spreading out like a bride's veil or a miniature Niagara, fell into the river until Monday afternoon. The break could not be repaired until a new collar was obtained from Louisville on the late train Monday night. As the water supply was necessarily diminished on the north side, Mr. Griffin, of the Water Company and Fire Department, to prepare in case of fire, had the cisterns filled and the steam fire engine put in condition to answer alarms.

World's Columbian Exposition

Will be of value to the world by illustrating the improvements in the mechanical arts and eminent physicians will tell you that the progress of medicinal agents has been of equal importance, and as a strengthening laxative that Syrup of Figs is far in advance of all others.

Cut Flowers.

When you want cut flowers of any kind, you want them cut fresh to preserve their beauty and fragrance. Therefore Power's greenhouse is the place to get them; and he don't intend to be undersold by anyone in either cut flowers or plants. A full supply of plants will be kept at the store from now on and sold at prices that can't be beat. 35-1f.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Kentucky Educational Association at Lexington July 1, 2 and 3.

The program for the annual meeting of the Kentucky Educational Association to be held at Lexington Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 1, 2 and 3, was received from President McHenry Rhoads of this city, on Monday. It is too lengthy for the ROUNDABOUT to publish, but as the association embraces the teachers from every city and county in the State, and among them numbers some of the ablest men and women in the profession, the meeting cannot fail to be both entertaining and instructive to all who may attend.

Of the Frankfort teachers, Prof. Rhoads is down on the program for a response, as President, to the addresses of welcome; Miss Louise A. Wiard will talk on "Language in Grammar Grades"; Prof. J. D. Coleman will take part in the discussion on the address, "How to Groom a School"; Mr. T. M. Goodnight, of Superintendent Thompson's office, will join in the discussion "The True Work of the Institute," and also "Civics in the Public School." Superintendent Ed. Porter Thompson will close the exercises with an address. Besides these, Prof. J. T. Gaines and Miss Addie Schroeder, of Louisville, both of whom are well known here, are features of the program, the former in a discussion on "The Materials of Literature—How to use them in Class Work," and the latter for an address on "The Proper Training of Teachers."

The daily sessions of the Association will be held at the Auditorium of the State College. Tickets from this city will be sold at one fare for the round trip on June 30, July 1 and 2, and be good returning, until July 5th.

A Terrible Visitant.

Pain is always a terrible visitant, and often domiciles itself with one for life. This affliction is preventable, in cases of rheumatism by timely resort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which checks the encroachments of this obnoxious and dangerous malady at the outset. The term "dangerous" is used advisedly, for rheumatism is always liable to attack the vital organs and terminate life. No testimony is more conclusive and concurrent than that of physicians who testify to the excellent effect of the Bitters in this disease. Persons incur a wasting in rainy or snowy weather, and who are exposed to draughts, should use the Bitters as a preventive of ill effects. Malaria, dyspepsia, liver and kidney trouble, nervousness and debility are also among the ailments to which this popular medicine is adapted. For the infirmities, soreness and stiffness of the aged it is highly beneficial.

THE PUBLIC PARK.

An Opportunity to Secure One to Which Attention Is Invited.

The suggestion that the city purchase the site of the Fincel block for a public park has been received with a great deal of favor. A number of citizens have requested the ROUNDABOUT to keep the matter before the people so that they may not fail to give it that consideration it deserves. Bowling Green, with a less population than Frankfort, and many other smaller cities maintain parks which are regarded by their citizens as their chief pride and general health resort, and to put the question to the inhabitants of those towns, as to their faith in the usefulness of parks, would call forth a decisive answer that they are indispensable and worth more to a larger number of citizens than any other single public institution. If the lots between Bridge street and the school property belonged to the city, and now is the time to arrange for the purchase while the property is unimproved and comparatively cheap, it could be gradually filled and terraced to the river, provided with walks, fountains and flowers, and made a spot of surpassing loveliness, to which the whole city would be irresistibly drawn to luxuriate in the beautiful panorama spread before them. There is no other piece of property in the city having any of the desirable features for a park excepting this stretch of ground from Bridge street to the city school, and as the opportunity to acquire the property on reasonable terms is before the people now, it should not fail to claim their most serious attention.

Local Brevities.

Mr. Solomon Bishop transferred to his wife 12 acres of land near Peak's Mill for $365.

Dr. J. S. Coleman has purchased for $3,000 the Ned Cummins property on Ann street, occupied by Black & Hursey.

The storeroom on St. Clair street belonging to the Fincel Brothers was sold this week to Dr. Vincent A. Kaltenbrun for $6,000.

A. D. Evans, of Jetts, has compromised his suit for damages against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. He accepted $575.

Mr. Sam Salyers has sold his farm on the Owenton turnpike to Mr. A. Q. Gaines, and his farm on the Georgetown turnpike to I. N. Salyers.

On Decoration day in Chicago Major Henry T. Stanton, of this city, will read a poem on the occasion of the dedication of the Confederate monument in Oakwood cemetery, erected in memory of 6,000 Confederate prisoners who died at Camp Douglas from 1862 to 1865.

Wakefield & Choate, by a fire at their planing mill on Friday night of last week, sustained a loss of about $200. It was covered by insurance.

Lightning struck the corner of Mr. Lou Choate's house on the West Side, Friday of last week, and after tearing off a few strips, glanced to a large oak tree and skinned it.

The vestry of Ascension Church have let a contract for the remodeling of the house until recently occupied by Mrs. Green as a residence. It will be converted into a commodious Sunday-school room.

The ladies of the Methodist Church will give a "meat and strawberry supper" at Todd's confectionary on next Thursday evening. Their success in the past will insure a large attendance of patrons on this occasion.

Dallas Crutcher says he is the only man in the county, aside from Rev. B. Fay Mills, who can make the merchants of Frankfort close up. The other merchants say it is not a question of "close up" with them but "clothes down."

The advent of spring has brought forth the usual house cleaning and general improvements, and for the past few weeks the painters, paper hangers and house furnishing dealers have been kept busily at work on houses in all parts of the city.

Mrs. Mary Ryan in coming down the steps Tuesday, from the second story of her house on Main street, into her grocery, fell and broke her arm. She is resting comfortably now, but her great age will necessarily cause the fracture to prolong her suffering and helplessness.

Mr. John T. Gray, formerly of this city, will have charge this season of the Harrogate, Tenn., Four Seasons Hotel. He expects to have it in readiness next week. Mr. Gray is an experienced manager of hotels and his friends here wish him an abundant success in guests and profits.

The Populists of this county held a meeting at the courthouse last Saturday afternoon at which speeches were made by Messrs. W. T. B. South, Polk Moore and W. P. Marsh. The question of nominating a candidate for the Legislature was postponed until the first Monday in July.

The Louisville Times of Thursday says: "Mrs. Mena Sargent, of Frankfort, who came here about five months ago, is being anxiously inquired for by friends. She has not been heard from for two months. Mrs. Penn, of Frankfort, is here to look for her. She is stopping at 1800 Lytle street.

The graves of the Confederate dead in the cemetery of this city will be decorated next Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. There will be no ceremony of any kind further than the gathering of the friends and surviving soldiers at the cemetery, where a prayer will be said, and the flowers then spread over the graves by the daughters of the soldiers.

The Sixth Annual State Convention of Christian Endeavor will be held at the Warren Memorial Church in Louisville, beginning next Friday and continuing until the Sunday following. The churches of this city will send delegations to the meeting. Tickets for the round trip will be sold at one fare on Thursday and be good returning until Monday, the 27th inst.

Judge Dempsey, of Hopkins county, was nominated at the Owensboro convention Thursday as the nominee of the Democratic party for Railroad Commissioner in the First District. Assistant Adj. Gen. Frank B. Richardson was also a candidate for the nomination and his friends here regretted to learn of his defeat. The convention also declared for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

A leading physician says the health of the city for the past four months has been distressingly good, and if it continues, the doctors will have to go into some other kind of business to make a livelihood. He is nevertheless humane enough to hope that the good health may continue, but warns the people and city government that now is the time to see to it that the streets, alleys and premises are kept clean.

Do not be weary of well-doing but keep the good work going. Keep the streets and alleys clean and do not allow nuisances of any kind to be committed or exist on or about back premises. Health should be the first consideration with everyone, and the most important step towards preserving or recovering it, is to breathe fresh, wholesome air and this cannot be done unless the city is thoroughly cleansed of all its impure orders.

The re-instatement of an injunction by Judge Hazelrigg of the Court of Appeals in the case of C. B. Pearce, W. W. Baldwin and others against Mason county, to prevent the county from levying and collecting a tax to buy turnpikes and make them free to the public, will have the effect of bringing up for trial the whole question of the constitutionality of the act of 1886. The decision in this case will be of great importance to those counties desiring to obtain free turnpikes by levying a tax to pay for them.

Deafness Can't Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

GOOD ADVICE.

Chaplain Wright Urges Men to Take their Bearings in their Best Moods.

A "home letter" written by Rev. Carroll Q. Wright, Chaplain of the U. S. Steamship Minneapolis, as a part of the story of the first cruise of that vessel last February, contains sound and inspiring advice to the crew of his vessel for a right and God fearing life. A printed copy of the letter was seen at the home of Mr. John E. Miles, the father-in-law of Mr. Wright, who with his wife is now visiting this city, and as the subject-matter is as applicable to land lubbers as to the "middles," a few excerpts were taken for their benefit.

"The bright side is oftener true than the black side. Better take your bearings when you are in your best moods. We are creatures of moods. Don't measure yourself and God and the world when you are shriveled up with bitterness, or twisted with indignation, or writhing with conscience ache, or seething with anger. At such times let us suspend all important decisions—we're not big enough at such times to establish the principles of a wondrous heart, nor to fix the bounds and paint the hues of a marvelous life, nor indite the creed of an eternal soul, nor set the pace of a great career, nor decide the character of the Almighty God. For such important decisions one needs to be in the best possible trim, just as he does to play a successful athletic game, just as when the speed record of the "Minneapolis" was to be made up, a moment was chosen when she was in her best mood. So let us seize the very best and brightest moments we experience in which to form opinions on the greatest things—God, soul, mankind, civil government, morality, love and a thousand other questions that press upon us. And when one of these better tempers is mellowing and clearing your mind, I do fervently pray that you may decide to champion every good cause; to be an enthusiastic citizen as well as servant of the United States; to attend the worship of the Almighty God on Sunday; to frown upon and flatly rebuke all nasty speech, unpatriotic utterances and the crimes of lying, theft, gambling and profane swearing."

A beautiful prayer was also written on the occasion by Mr. Wright and printed on a card for the men to commit to memory.

THE BOULEVARD.

Once the Pride but Now the Shame of Frankfort.

That part of the boulevard that belongs to the city—from the Devils Hollow bridge to the Louisville turnpike—is an abomination that should either be closed to the public or else put in such repair as to make it safe to life and property that pass over it. In one place the hill side has so encroached on the roadway as to barely leave room for a vehicle to pass, and in numerous places the holes and ruts are so deep as to make it dangerous to travel over them. There will be an accident and injury on this road at night unless steps are taken at once to repair it. Why this beautiful walk and drive, once the most popular pleasure resort around the city, should be so neglected and uncared for, is a mystery which not only the citizens have frequently asked each other, but which strangers have often commented on and considered an evidence of Frankfort's shiftlessness and general indifference to waste and ruin. A few days work by the workhouse gang in widening the narrow points and spreading broken rock on the road, and repairing the wooden walk way as far as it goes, would be a trifling cost in comparison to the pleasure such improvements would bring, and the amount, perhaps, this might save the city in a suit for damages.

Limited is the only train running through from Cincinnati to New York that enables the business men to transact business in Cincinnati one day and New York the next. It is the only train for Jersey City Coast resorts, which are reached by the F. F. V. at dinner time instead of in the evening. It is the only train that enables business men to transact business in Cincinnati one day and reach Washington for breakfast the next morning. It is the most desirable train for New England resorts, connections being made in the Union Depot in Washington with the Colonial Express running through to Boston which reaches New Haven 4.10 p. m., New London 5.30 p. m., Providence 7.15 p. m. and Boston 8.30 p. m. MR. DARSIE ABROAD.

Assouan and Philae.

I must talk a little more about Upper Egypt. It seems strange to say "up" when you are traveling South; yet that is correct, for the Nile flows nearly due North, and it is at least generally supposed that water runs down hill. Here we are at Assouan, the Southern boundary of Egypt, and the end of our southward journey. Our steamer could not quite make the city, owing to low water, and having run aground in the effort, it dropped down and landed a mile below. Assouan has a mixed population of 10,000 and some very interesting bazaars. Being on the route from Central Africa to Cairo, you see many things offered for sale here which are new and strange, such as example leopard skins, stuffed crocodiles, spears, battle axes, swords, daggers, canes made of rhinoceros and hippopotamus hides, ostrich feathers, ostrich eggs, bead necklaces, bead aprons and so on. Beyond the bazaars there is nothing of special interest save the quarries; but they are indeed noteworthy. From Assouan came all the immense granite building blocks and sarcophagi and obelisks and statues which fill Egypt and which have gone far beyond into other lands. Rome, Paris, London and New York all have soaring needles that were quarried here. In fact the ancient names of Assouan, Syene (mentioned by the prophet Ezekiel as the Southern limit of Egypt) has given name to this species of rock the world over. It is called "syenite." The quarries are the other side of Assouan, going South. In them there is still found a mammoth obelisk that was in process of being quarried when operations ceased some two thousand of years ago. It is said to be cut away on three sides, though we could not verify the fact because the drifting sand covers all but the top and a small portion of one side. It measures 92 feet by 10½ and would be even longer if we counted the pyramidal top already hewn. How people could quarry such huge monoliths without explosives, and how they could transport them uninjured hundreds of miles are still among the ceaseless wonders of Egypt.

Yet hard as the granite of Syene was, its durability for building purposes was not equal to the Silsilah sandstone, to be found in the equally famous quarries on both sides of the river, six or seven miles below. The best preserved buildings in Egypt are of the Silsilah sandstone. While at the Raamesseum in Luxor, I saw the largest granite statue ever erected. It is a statue of Raameses II. and it computed to have weighed over two million pounds. It is prostrate now, having been thrown down by the early Christians, but its foot remains and measures four feet nine inches across, and its second toe ten inches in width and twenty-nine inches in length, even with the nail lacking. What a monster statue it must have been. But what surprised me most was to see how the weather is scaling off this hard block of granite. And Egypt doesn't have much weather either. Yet even in this dry atmosphere and genial climate, the granite, unless highly polished, gradually dissolves.

We gave one day while at Assouan to the island of Elephantine, immediately opposite the city, and anciently a very important and populous island, having been one of the nomes or counties of Egypt and having included its own capital within its narrow banks. Now it is a mass of rubbish with but few inhabitants. Several ancient temples which stood upon it have within the present century been removed to become building material for houses in Assouan. Nothing remains that is of interest beside its historic memories, save its Nilometer. This dates back to early times, but was repaired and restored in 1870 by the Khedive, and refaced with new masonry. It is simply a stone staircase with 52 steps going down to the water of the Nile, and having on the sides of it the means of measuring in Arabian elis the height of the river.

One very interesting feature of our stay at Assouan was the variety of races met with. The river bank at our steamer's side was lined with a continuous stream of Nubians, Soundenese, Negroes, Bedouin, Fellahin, Copts and Bishareen. The last named are a race of dark-skinned, straight-haired, gaunt and wild looking specimens from the shores of the Red Sea, some of whom had come hither to sell a few simple baskets and other trinkets of their own making. The Nubians are tall and fine looking, with a skin black and shining as ebony. The Soundenese women plait their hair in a multitude of plaits and then anoint it with copious quantities of castor oil, till the oil hardens into a crust on the top of the head, and then swaggers round in the very latest of style. No Soundenese lady amounts to anything in the matter of social standing till she gets a castor oil crust on her head. It is the one touch which enables her to ride the crest of the social wave, so to speak.

It was at Assouan that I had my first and only camel ride. Three of us went out of the steamer one morning and mounted three white camels as they knelt on the sand, and then off we sped like Gaspar, Melchior and Balthasar, the three kings in Ben Hur, who rode into Jerusalem guided thither by the star in the East. I never felt myself so up in the world before—nor so helpless in getting down again. The camel's slow "pace" is an easy swaying motion which I could readily fall in with and enjoy, but none of his fast "pace" for me, if you please. It jerks the teeth out of your jaws, dislocates your neck, breaks your back and severs all your joints. There are two other gait said to be still worse, but I didn't try them. I am perfectly willing to accept Amelia B. Edwards' statement that one of them reduces you to imbecility, and that the other is sudden death. I was sufficiently imbecile and nearly enough dead when I had tried the fast "pace." Miss Edwards, while no doubt correct about the camel, missed it badly on the weather at Assouan. She calls it the hottest place on earth, and she no doubt found it so. But we didn't. On the contrary we found it decidedly cool. Overcoats by day and blankets by night were a necessity. And that not one day but the three days we spent there. Considering we were only thirty odd miles from the Tropic of Cancer, that was doing very well we thought.

But donkeys and donkey boys are out there on the bank to take us in the early morning of our last day in Assouan on an excursion to the beautiful and sacred Island of Philae. It is a ride of six miles, and we go out through the granite quarries and among rocky and sandy desolation, with out the presence of a green thing all the way, to have the fair vision of a little Philae, the pearl of Egypt, as Baedeker calls it, burst at last upon our vision, after a gallop of an hour and a quarter. We are surprised at its diminitiveness. The island is scarcely 150 yards across and only about three times as long. But its ancient sacredness as a shrine for pious pilgrims from all parts of Egypt and from lands far beyond her borders was in the inverse ratio of its size. The island was dedicated to Isis, and its ruins embrace three temples, one large and one small (the small one being popularly known as "Pharaoh's bed"), both erected in honor of Isis, and a chapel to Hathor, the cow-headed goddess, whose worship was closely associated with that of Isis. The island is "banded all around by an artificial wall" and completely covered with ruins. We look with rapture upon the long and imposing colonnade, and as we stand on the lofty pylon for the view, we vote Philae a fitting climax for our journey in Egypt.

Here too was one of the graves of Osiris, and on the walls are cut the picture of his resurrection, by reason of which he became the prince of eternity and the judge of the dead. We had seen on many temples before this the familiar scene of his awful judgment seat, where the scales were erected, the witnesses assembled and the eternal doom of souls decided. But nowhere was Osiris held in greater reverence or worshipped with greater awe than on Philae. His very name to the pious Egyptian was unmentionable, as was after wards the name Jehovah to Israel. The most solemn oath that could be taken was the oath that swore by him who sleeps in Philae.

A very interesting inscription here is that which represents the source of the Nile. On a wall close by the riverside is a picture of the island of Bigh (immediately opposite Philae), and of a cavern going into its side, surrounding which is a serpent within whose coiled form sits the God of the Nile pouring water from two vases, one in each hand. That was supposed to be one of the Nile's sources. Another was located among the eddies at the Southern end of the island of Elephantine. But these surely could not have been thought other than symbolical sources, knowing as they did that the river came from far beyond. The priests were nearer the mark when they described the source of the Nile as a mystery that would not be solved till the soul entered the next world.

Our return to Assouan from Philae was not by donkey but by boat. The five miles between are known as the first cataract. Roaring rapids rush over the granite rocks, which by their action have been rounded into boulders and glazed with a black crust which glistens like a smoothing iron. The trip is called dangerous, with which opinion I do not agree, but it is certainly thrilling. To one who has run the rapids of the St. Lawrence, those of the Nile seem small. Yet they carry you down with a rush in places, which far exceed in excitement any experience on the larger stream. You go in a galley, and eight obnoxious oarsmen from Nubia do the rowing, bursting every minute or two, as they pull the boat along, into a song and chorus, which proved a most unique and pleasing entertainment. Responsive to our appreciation they used probably all the English they knew and shouted in concert at intervals, "Hip, hip hooray! Tank 'oo, tank 'oo vary much!"—which always set us into roars of laughter.

At one point on the descent, where the waters are wildest and fiercest, we stopped and walked a little way along the bank to a high precipice in order to see the naked Nubian boys and men, some with nothing to cling to, others with small logs, leap into the rapids and shoot them with fearful velocity and at the seeming risk of their lives. Of course the air was full of cries for "backshish," when they had done the daring feat; and their cries were not in vain. One brawny fellow who had ridden the highest waves of the boiling cataract aside of a log and held a bright flag high above his head while doing so, was especially well rewarded, as he deserved to be.

The bride is well known in this city, where she once lived before she made her home in Springfield with her sister, Mrs. Frank Grubbs, and her numerous friends here wish her the perfection of a happy wedded life. The couple came to Chicago after the marriage, and will return to their home in Springfield from that city.

College Lecture.

Rev. W. C. Taylor gave a very entertaining and instructive lecture to the pupils of Frankfort college yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. His subject was, The Will. He expressed regret that our school books and school teaching—especially in our higher institutions—give so little attention to the culture and development of the will. By many apt and striking examples, he showed that the strong character—man or woman—is the one who most fully rules his or her own spirit, that the really successful men and women are those who have strong wills impelling them, at any cost of self-denial, to duty and achievement.

The faculty and pupils are busy preparing for final examinations and commencement, which will occur the first week in June.

Meeting at North Benson Sunday week was attended by a large congregation. The sermon was exceeding good and the singing was splendid.

The inhabitants of this locality are still complaining of the cut worms. There will be but little tobacco raised as the cut worms have destroyed all the plants.

The Misses White, from off the hill, paid a visit to Mrs. Sam Hulett recently.

The fishing party from off Benson will start out to-day. We wish them all good luck in success.

The people of this community are surprised to know that Christopher Columbus is yet living. We supposed he died in 1513, but guess it was a mistake, as your writer from Quality Corner states that Christopher Columbus has been fishing at the railroad bridge. It is a beautiful place to fish and the fish bite exceedingly good. We respectfully invite Miss Mocking Bird over to fish and sincerely trust to her getting a nibble.

RIVER NEWS.

A Good Tide, Plenty of Business and Something About the New Lock.

It rained all day Wednesday, and from the best information obtained the rain extended all the way up the river to the headwaters, and a good boating and logging tide is the result. Rafts of logs first appeared on the rise Tuesday, and they have been coming down the river ever since that day. The steamers Fall City and Rescue and the towboat Little Sandy, with her grain barges for Rip's distilleries, have been doing a good business during the week. Both of the two first named boats have had fine trips of passengers each way.

Over two years have elapsed since Lock No. 6 was completed, and an ample appropriation to build lock number 7 was made more than a year ago, the fund on hand for that purpose being about $300,000, and yet because of the slow process of condemning land for the site of the lock at High Bridge, a judgment for which was recently obtained in the United States Court at Louisville, and the necessity to pass papers and reports from one official to another before the order to begin the work can be given, it is feared that two years more will elapse before another lock on the Kentucky river will be completed. The government has had control of the river for fifteen years, and in that time put four old locks in good condition and built one new lock and dam. At this rate the Three Forks will not be reached in a century.

The Senate to Organize.

Frankfort Senate, No. 12, Knights of the Ancient Essene Order, will be instituted in this city on Thursday evening next, in the ball room of the Capital Hotel. The Senate will be opened by a delegation of ten gentlemen from Fayette Senate, Lexington, after which the officers of the new organization will be elected and installed, and reports of committees will be heard, after which work in the first degree will be exemplified by the members of Fayette Senate present. The object of the order is aid its members in social and business affairs, to relieve the distressed, to assist the needy, and care for the widow and orphan.

Honey Suckle.

A cold wave struck us this week.

Old Uncle Milton Moore has taken refuge in his overcoat.

There was quite a serious accident happened to Rev. J. A. Peters as he was returning from church last Wednesday night. His horse frightened at a lantern and ran his buggy off the pike just opposite Mr. Jessie Phillips, capsizing it and throwing him out on his face, breaking three of his ribs. His wife remained in the buggy and escaped unharmed.

Bob O. Link, Bob O. Link, Now what do you think, Who stole my nest away, From Quality Corner to-day.

The cold winds from the North did blow.

It waved Miss Mocking bird to and fro, She flapped her wings, with many a clink, Then walked up a Bob O. Link.

We would ask of our friend from Zilpah if the old maid and poodle dog of which he spoke do not reside with a Moore.

And now in conclusion we will say that while the old blue jay is not as sweet a singer as the mocking bird, yet he warbles his own notes.

OLD BLUE JAY.

THE BICYCLE.

Accident, Bloomer, Famine and Livery News.

The rain and disagreeable weather interfered very much with bicycle riding this week.

The papers record a number of accidents to wheelmen in Louisville by being run over by vehicles this week, but due care and caution in riding, especially in turning corners and coasting, will preclude such dangers in this city.

The new lively feature of Mangan & Darnell is proving quite a success. The five wheels in their stable are in constant use during good weather, and often engaged for those who are learning, even on days when riders are not out.

Bloomers are not necessary for lady riders, and the fact that the ladies here are riding in a skirt reaching to their ankles, and not finding it inconvenient, immodest or dangerous, is proof that there is no disposition in Frankfort to run after a fad that is in bad taste and generally condemned by the male portion of a community whose good opinion the female portion naturally and properly desire.

A wheel famine is felt in this city, as well as other cities. One agent remarked the other day that he had orders out for more than a month and still the wheels have not arrived. The high grade factories, it appears, are experiencing considerable trouble in obtaining sufficient tubing for frames to supply the enormous demand for wheels this year.

Louisville has a delightful course of six miles or more over Third street and the Boulevard to Jacob Park, but it is flat, unvarying scenery and too smooth to give sufficient exercise to keep the bicyclist in good trim for road riding. Such a course eventually loses its charm and the rider is certain to seek new pleasures on the turnpikes and country roads. In this part of the State is unsurpassed, and wheelmen never tire in going over the Versailles, Lawrenceburg, Louisville and Owenton turnpikes, running through a country without its equal in the refreshing power of beauty and fertility spread before him at every turn of the road.

MANUAL TRAINING.

An Essential Element in Education.

The acquirement of scientific and literary knowledge without acquiring the ability to apply it to some useful purpose is a great incommensurate to its possessor. The same may be said of mathematics. While a knowledge of science, literature and mathematics give a certain degree of pleasure and satisfaction to their possessor, let us not forget that mental delights never were known to supply physical needs. A person of wealth and leisure may revel in the luxuries of mental delights only if he so chooses, but such luxuries are not for those who are less happily situated unless they are able at the same time to apply knowledge to practical purposes. "What can you do?" This is the practical question which confronts the graduate on the threshold of life. The graduate of the manual training schools has an answer to this question. He says, "I am able to do a variety of useful things; I have learned to put thought into my work; I have acquired a skillful hand as well as an active mind, and know how to use both. Give me the opportunity and I will make myself useful in either direction."

Lieut. Ford, Principal of the Baltimore Manual Training School, said: "Surely all who have visited us will agree that the motto of the school, 'The cunning hand and cultivated brain,' as there developed, is the thing to be sought after by all who expect to keep up in the race of humanity on the road of life, and that unless these two are taken equal account of by all educators, evil results are bound to follow and make themselves felt in the progress of the community."

Superintendent Rose, of Aberdeen, Miss., says: "There should be a series of work-lessons so arranged as to awaken thought, and to give the knowledge and use of tools and utensils side by side with the ordinary lessons of the school-room."

The Kentucky State Teachers' Association said: "Resolved, That we recognize manual training to be a great factor in the development of the head, the heart and the hand, and we recommend its instruction throughout the Commonwealth."

In Memoriam.

Miss Anna Belle Crockett died of consumption at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Pink Crockett, on the evening of May 14th, 1895, near Bridgeport, Franklin county, Kentucky, aged 31 years, 8 months and 24 days. When about 18 years of age she united with the Bridgeport Christian Church and lived a true and consistent member to the day of her triumphant death.

The subject of this notice had been in declining health for some months, but was not confined to her room until three or four months ago, when it became evident that her vital powers were weakening. Medical skill was of no avail. Friend after friend administered to her wants. Her devoted mother, whom the deceased almost adored, remained by her bedside with untiring vigilance to gratify every desire that her temporary wants would suggest, yet the progress of the fatal disease could not be arrested. She bore her sufferings without a murmur, as she said it was the Lord's will. Never before was it the lot of the writer to witness such a complete resignation as was exhibited in the sick chamber of this beautiful Christian character who was so soon to fall asleep in the arms of Jesus. She was beloved by the entire family, affectionately regarded by a large circle of friends and highly esteemed by all who knew her. But in the fresh vigor of young womanhood and usefulness she has been taken from us. Her illness was very painful, but last she dropped like a pearl from the casket—as a star from the sky—her spirit passed beyond our recall and is shrouded in the midst of eternity.

She was a favorite among her associates and widely loved for her warmheartedness and cheerful disposition; she was admired by many for her self-will and firm resolutions, believing that "where there's a will there's a way," and for her many gifts and graces which especially adorned her beautiful character. Anna Belle would remember her devoted mother, "not to weep. Oh! I have no fear of death," and would often talk to the family and friends about the important events of which she was about to begin a journey, telling the family one by one how to live that they might meet her on the other shore where loved ones have gone before.

That beautiful hymn, "We Shall Reach the Summer Land on Sweet Day, By and By," at her request, was sung at the funeral services which were conducted in the Bridgeport Christian Church by Rev. D. Clay Lilly. Her remains were then followed by many relatives and friends and laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery to await the resurrection morn. God gave her a bright and happy life, involving little of suffering or sorrow during her young days, and in her last illness she learned the lesson of suffering which she bore with so much patience, with so much to live for. Yet, she was well prepared to die. She often said: "Not my will, but Thine be done." Faithful in life, triumphant in death. When we endeavor to portray her beautiful character, we find that words are inadequate to tell or describe her many virtues.

It is sad, but according to human nature, to weep for the loss of loved ones, but upon this occasion, at the loss of this lovely flower of our garden, such a death, so triumphant, should be a comfort and consolation to the bereft mother, sisters and brother for such a loss is Anna Belle's eternal gain.

The happy exchange of which she so often spoke has been realized. She is now at home with her savior and dear ones gone before.

"Oh, how sweet it will be in that beautiful land, So free from all sorrow and pain, With roses on our lips and willows in our hands, To meet once another again." W. H. P.

IN MEMORIAM.

DEAD.—In this city, May 17th, Mrs. Cynthia E. Sullivan, in the 74th year of age. She had, since her youth, been a consistent member of the Methodist Church. Prominent in all the relations of life, she was the friend, comforter in their old and most endearing friends. Her life was a life of usefulness with that gentle and meekness which characterized her. True to the cause of the Savior, and met death with cheerfulness and resignation. May she be again born and happy in the Father's home, as she was in the dark valley of the shadow of death, sustained by the same sustaining love which she expressed.

"And the blessed memory of her virtues rest Lingering like twilight hues when the sun has set."

FRANKFORT ROUNDABOUT

FRANKFORT, MAY 18, 1835.

Forks of Elkhorn.

Rain, snow, ice and frost have been visiting us this week.

Mr. Will Ely, of Lexington, visited relatives in our midst the first of the week.

From present indications the fruit crop of the later varieties will be abundant.

Tobacco setting has occupied the attention of some of our farmers this week.

Mrs. Martha Wilkerson and daughter, Miss Sue, left for Union county last week.

Regular services at Buck Run to-morrow at the usual hours; also at the Christian Church.

"The school for the children and not for the teacher" is a maxim worthy the careful consideration of trustees.

Messrs. Henry Penn and W. T. Featherston were in Louisville last Wednesday looking after their tobacco interests.

Mrs. H. C. Greenup and Mrs. Llewellyn Holton, who have each been very sick during the past week, are some better.

Mr. George Goddard, who is engaged in business at Lexington, visited his father's family in our midst the first of the week.

The annual roll call of the members of Buck Run Church will take place to-morrow morning. A full attendance is earnestly requested.

Where are you going? What are you going after? And how long are you going to stay? are some of the questions plied by those curiously inclined.

Fishing has been excellent in Silver Lake (Black's pond) during the past two weeks. Some fine ones have been taken and still the fun goes on.

That polite and accommodating butcher, Mr. Sudduth Darnell, supplies our citizens twice each week with choice beef. Try it and be convinced.

Revs. J. H. Burdin and E. S. Alderman have returned home from Washington City, whither they went last week as delegates to the Southern Baptist Convention.

Mrs. Rebecca Crockett and Mrs. Maggie Hawkins and Mr. C. H. Crockett and family, of Bridgeport, and Mrs. D. M. Crockett and Mrs. Mattie Harrison and son, of Murfreesboro, Tennessee, visited C. H. Parrent and family last Monday.

The oldest living citizen fails to note the time when the destruction of vegetation by the cut worms proved to be so serious. Besides the usual work of this little pest whole fields of clover, hemp and oats have been destroyed. Altogether the prospect presents a gloomy appearance.

DELATED LETTER.

Mr. Lloyd Featherston, of Midway, was in our midst last week.

"The school is for the children and not for the teacher" is a maxim for the earnest consideration of trustees.

Mr. Harp has moved to this place from Georgetown and is now engaged in the blacksmith business at the Newton stand.

Bro. Burdin was called to Pigeon Fork last week to preach the funeral sermon of one of the members of his church there.

C. H. Parrent and family were called to Bridgeport last Sunday week to attend the funeral of Mrs. Parrent's sister, Miss Anna Belle Crockett.

Revs. J. H. Burdin and E. S. Alderman left Tuesday last week for Washington City to attend the Southern Baptist Convention which met in that city last week.

Silver Lake—Black's Pond—is now affording excellent sport for those piscatorially inclined. Many fine ones have been captured during the past two weeks and still the fun goes on.

The destruction of vegetation by the cutworms this season has not a parallel in the history of the oldest inhabitants. In many instances whole fields of corn have been destroyed, necessitating entire replanting; even oats and hemp have not escaped.

The City School Nine's Defeat.

(By C. C. Wakefield, Editor "The Normal Torchlight.")

When we reached the park the city nine was playing with might and will. They were drilling and calling the boys in line to beat old "Normal Hill!" The stand was full of Frankfort's pride. And they were pressing and coming still; Their eyes and mouths were opened wide. Ah! We'll beat "old Normal Hill!"

But while they spoke in cheering tones of the boys from town The electric currents with force and power the very air did churn; Bringing the gallant boys who came marching down—

The victors from "Normal Hill!" The atmosphere took up applause to echoing, echo, repeat. While Normal courage filled each heart like a gentle flowing rill. Brave David boys showed the city's defeat. And a victory for "Normal Hill!"

When the game was called our boys stood with a courage we admire; They battled well and struck each ball with certainty, dexterity and skill; When Ward held a hot ball right against Bro. Sillie's side.

The umpire would say "you are out on strikes, get back!" A better from Normal Hill! And then our boys would stand and watch those tricky curves. And with a well directed stroke of energetic, determined will.

They would unsettle Bro. Saffell's nerves By sending his balls higher than the flag-pole on Normal Hill.

W played the boys as nicely and smoothly as a hand. Why, Riley made Bro. Sillie stand over the plate and "fan!" Then we laughed and laughed until we cried.

When Ward held a hot ball right against Bro. Sillie's side. Now all the boys were rattled, and began to lose their gut. We got them all together and bagged the boys to quit.

We saw their courage falter and their hopes began to wane. But they said "you must defeat us and leave us in the rain." Then I thought I would just get back and get my gun!

To see a city chap start for first, why the fellow couldn't run. Why before he was in motion, a running good and stout. The umpire yelled, "go back, why, Ward has put you out!"

Then with cheering and with praise we made the hills resound. As our boys kept their little flies so high above the ground; We defeated them, then we cheered with soul, might and main.

We took the cars and left the city boys in the cold and chilly rain. Cueing and shouting we left them with hot tears in their eyes. But we had to make our journey to the victorious Normal skies.

And as we came great forces said, "Yes we will carry them faster still. And let them study the harvest home, and victory on Normal Hill!"
